It would not be without effect, moreover, to refer to the great trunk lines of America, which connect the cities of the Atlantic seaboard with the populous sister cities on the Pacific slope. It remains to be seen whether financial jealousy on the part of Chinese capitalists, or race jealousy periodically indulged in by the Chinese, or they are going to lay themselves open to impositions whenever the Guilds choose to decree that the time has come when the public should be further victimised. Residents now have the opportunity to voice their opinions on the matter and signify by united action that they have reached the limit of endurance. This can be clearly brought home to the meat suppliers and vendors by a public meeting agreeing to take determined action to either bend or break the Guild. Once the Guild is threatened by such opposition they will—even if our own Government does not—take steps to move the authorities in the provinces who are alleged to be receiving so much "squeeze-money" from the cattle sellers. We know enough of the Chinese to feel certain that once the public here use the thumb-screw they will see that they do not unduly suffer the torture. If the real pinch is in the provinces they will soon remove it, and by so doing will do away with the major portion of the disabilities under which we now suffer. Will the public move?

THE RISE IN MEAT.

In addition to the information supplied in yesterday's issue we have been able to obtain particulars, from a gentleman who is undoubtedly an authority on the question, of cattle exportation from the Kwangtung province. This is set out in another column and shows that in certain respects the connoisseurs have some ground for the excuse they make that meat has risen in price owing to additional imposts by the Chinese and Customs authorities. However, the taxation does not warrant the extraordinary rise that has been made in the local market. The Chinese have evidently thought the time opportune to make a further "squeeze" and have added a percentage for profit to the perhaps legitimate amount which was necessitated by like and Customs duties. However, the question is, What are the public to do to escape the penalty that is being imposed? They can at a public meeting—the calling of which we suggested yesterday—show the Government that they are in earnest in desiring a modification of the price of meat, and a reform in the meat trade. It is within their province to appoint a deputation to wait on the Governor and point out the disabilities under which residents suffer, at the same time requesting the Government to enter into negotiations with the Customs authorities with a view to having the taxation on cattle modified in some respect; or to kill the meat-selling monopoly controlled by the Guild. At home we have a section of the people who are suffering from unfair taxation crying out for retaliatory tariffs. In Hongkong we now have the opportunity of appreciating the good which something of this kind would do to the Chinese who depend upon Hongkong for certain supplies. However, without entering so deeply into the question it is competent for the Government to take some steps to lighten the burden upon the importer of cattle, and we have no doubt that if the public, at a meeting assembled, signify their desires, the Government will endeavour to comply with them. So far as householders themselves are concerned they can take action whether the Government fall into line with them or not. They can support a local firm that has been established under difficulties with a view to supplying superior meat to the Colony. That firm is the Dairy Farm Company. All the meat that it imports is specially selected in Australia and sent up in steamers fitted with refrigerating chambers. The Company always carries large stocks of frozen meat in order to cope with the extraordinary requirements of the Army and Navy, and the stock could be increased.

It is a clever move to attract the Chinese government, and the best informed of the Chinese people, by the splendid conception of a great trunk line all the way from Canton to Peking, joining the capital of the north with the great trading emporium of the south, winding through her valleys, crossing her widest rivers, wending its way through her stoniest mountains, and connecting in a single chain, the hundreds of towns and thousands of populous villages, whose outskirts it would touch; and, at the same time, represent that the entire work may be financed and put through by a single company, and even by a single mind.

meat would be obtainable at the rates at which the inferior Chinese meat is sold at the local markets. Either the public are going to make some effort to stop for good and all the squeezing periodically indulged in by the Chinese, or they are going to lay themselves open to impositions whenever the

THE RISE IN THE PRICE OF MEAT.

The Tax on Cattle.

The reasons set forth in our issue of yesterday by the persons interested in the cattle trade and meat supply of Hongkong have been further supplemented by an interview which our reporter had with a gentleman who, for many years, has been intimately connected with the cattle trade. His grasp of the subject is complete, and his knowledge sound.

Speaking with reference to the duties imposed by the Customs on cattle, our informant told us that although the duty was on a five per cent ad valorem rate, it in reality amounted to much more than five per cent. This was brought about by the increased value set upon the cattle by the Customs. The Commissioners of Customs have the right of fixing the value on the cattle, and it is on this valuation that they charge the duty. Naturally enough, from their point of view, the higher they can fix the value of the cattle the greater the benefit for the Customs generally and for themselves as competent and valuable employees of the Customs service.

In some cases which came under the personal notice of our informant the increase in value amounted to 12½ per cent, and even more. That is to say, cattle which formerly had a value of Tls. 10 to 20, were valued at from Tls. 20½ to Tls. 22½, and it is on the latter figures that the tax was charged.

Another point touched upon was the action of the Viceroy in interfering with the export of cattle from the province. Quite recently an edict was issued in which the Viceroy limited the export of red cattle in some districts, and totally forbade any exportation whatever from other districts.

The districts from which exportation is forbidden are the richest cattle districts in the province, while the districts from which it is allowed, in limited degree, are the poorer cattle districts. The explanation given by the Viceroy at the time was that the cattle would need to till the fields in the spring. If the cattle were exported from the districts the people would become poorer, and their inability to till the lands would precipitate a famine. The edict was only to remain in force for three months after which exportation could go on again. These reasons for the stopping of exportation are invalid, of course, and can hardly be taken into consideration. The fact remains, however, that the exportation of cattle has been dealt a severe blow by the Viceroy, and to any one who is familiar with the customs of the Chinese in such matters it will be apparent that the effect of the edict will continue through summer, autumn and winter, as well as spring. In fact it will not be revoked unless strenuous pressure is brought to bear.

The Customs officials are foreigners in the employ of China, and it is an easy matter for the Taotai of the district to approach them with complaints of any character. The Taotai represents to the Commissioner of Customs that the cattle are scarce in the district and a higher price is being obtained for them, and he wants the value of the cattle raised. This suits the Customs officials and up goes the valuation of the cattle.

At Wuchow the valuation was increased from Tls. 20 to Tls. 25 on one occasion, but on counter representations being made by the cattle dealers as to the injustice of the increased valuation, the increase was in measure reduced again.

Cattle, according to our informant, are not scarce in the interior. There are plenty of them, but the export is being kept down. Some time ago it was a common occurrence to see five hundred cattle pass a week going down the river to Hongkong, now the average is more like fifty or sixty head per month. The reason for the active hostility shown by the Chinese officials against the cattle trade is not far to seek. In former years the cattle passed through the Chinese officials' hands, when sent out of the province, and like duty and various small and large expenses had to be paid. This proved so disastrous to the trade that it was decided to send all cattle down through the Chinese Imperial Customs, where only the one legitimate duty was charged.

The loss of the squatters had the effect of causing the Chinese provincial authorities to throw every possible obstacle in the way of the cattle dealers, and the recent edict of the Viceroy is directed towards the same end.

There is undoubtedly a certain amount of truth in the reason put forth that robbers and pirates are responsible to a certain extent for the increase in the price of meat, but that there is not a large one. The Viceroy has endeavoured to cope with that evil by presenting the thieves from being able to get rid of their stolen property. The practice of the robbers usually is to steal the cattle, transport them to another district and then sell for a cheap price. To prevent this the Viceroy has instituted a system, whereby cattle in transit are placed in transit passes (this means an additional tax) so that should they be stolen or sold on the way down, the sales, by means of these transit passes, may be traced.

However, these taxes only account for a portion of the increase. Totized together they would not amount to anything like the increase the consumer is being forced to pay, and the opinion of our informant was that the Chinese and compatriots were responsible for a good deal of the increased price.

The Dairy Farm Co.'s Capabilities.

Inquires by a representative of the China Mail, with the object of ascertaining how much meat the Dairy Farm Company kept in stock at one time, elicited the information that although the Company had a large stock to meet the demands of the Army and Navy and the public, they, as yet, cannot keep sufficient beef and mutton in their shop to serve customers as they please. The man, who was chairman, in a few well-chosen words, thanked Mr. Grimble and the performers for a most interesting and enjoyable evening.

An OLD RESIDENT. — The Company's management state that if they had sufficient regular customers they could stock enough meat on the premises to cut off joints as required, and also undertake the delivery of meat instead of asking customers to send their servants for supplies. At present it is necessary for those who desire meat from the cold storage to send in their orders before 3.45 p.m. the previous day, if they wish their meat delivered in the early morning. For delivery at 11 a.m. orders have to be sent in before 7.45 the same morning, whilst for deliveries for 3 p.m. orders should be sent in before 11.45 the same day.

This entails a certain amount of extra trouble on the part of the public but the Company will do their best to minimise it or obviate it altogether if they can secure sufficient patronage to warrant them in making up the upkeep of an extra staff.

ANOTHER RAILWAY.

From Canton to Peking.

CANTON, March 3. — There are renewed rumours here, and it is discussed in the Teing Shing Times, of a great trunk line running direct from Peking to Canton. Further, the rumours say that Americans, French and Belgians conjointly are to lay it and control it. As is well known, the original idea was that American financiers should construct the part from Canton to Hankow. French and Belgians were to lay the Northern half.

The British are out in the cold. Now, however, it is believed that the three countries are working for an amalgamation of their forces, and the King of the Belgians is very eager that the compact shall be made. How far the prospect is pleasing to the Chinese does not appear in this particular article. The great trunk line which Mr. Pierpont Morgan is said to have built in his own country from New York to San Francisco is referred to as a great ideal, and the glamour of this great achievement appears to strike the writer's imagination. The vision of one continuous line passing through the centre of China, calling at all the populous cities en route, and becoming more and more rich and influential, certainly would tend to warm the somewhat loathsome faculties of the most sensitive of the Chinese. The scheme is discussed without any of the bitternesses observable six months ago, and this is so, although direct reference is made to Mr. Pierpont Morgan as the controlling spirit of the entire undertaking. Further, it is stated that business men are discussing the project at present at Pak Lut Sik—which place I am unable to identify, unless it refers to Paris—and some progress is being made with the negotiations. The French are said to be specially eager to press forward the scheme, and will support the idea of amalgamation with America in this colossal enterprise.

MENDELSSOHN.

Lecture by Mr. George Grimble.

Before a large and appreciative audience on Thursday evening, at the Union Church Literary Club, Mr. George Grimble gave a most interesting lecture on 'Mendelssohn, his life and works.' The lecture was grouped in three parts, the first dealing with the life of the great musician from his birth to his death. Time did not permit of Mr. Grimble giving a list of all the compositions, and only the principal ones in each category these being known were dealt with. Mr. Grimble touched, too, in passing, on all the musician's accomplishments, and also showed how deeply and strongly religious he was.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BY WHarf AND WAVE.

The consignment of the steam launch "Kwon Wo" was fined $10, at the Magistracy this morning, for not exhibiting a light while anchored at the Fish Market Wharf after dark.

The small German steamer "Modan," formerly engaged on the run between here and Yap, has changed hands. She now flies the Japanese flag and will probably take up a new run north.

The master of the steam launch "Emerald" was prosecuted, at the Magistracy this morning, for using his whistle without reasonable cause. The defendant was blowing his whistle at 10 p.m. and said that he was doing so to call his engineer who was ashore. Mr. Hazelwood said that he would have to find some other way of calling the engineer and imposed a fine of $25.

NOTES FROM THE CANTON PRESS.

An Epidemic.

It is reported that at present there is a mild epidemic in Canton. The various consuls have issued stringent orders, that if any Chinese are found to be infected, they are at once to be removed beyond the Shamian boundaries. On no consideration are they to be retained on the premises. It is stated also that all the boats and junks which are wont to anchor in the canal are to be washed and cleaned. The Shamian police have orders to see that those things are attended to, and they are personally to examine into the question. Further, the boat people have been warned that they are not to allow victims of the epidemic to remain in their boats; they are to be removed at once or the owners of the boats will be punished.

WHARF EMPORIUM FOR TRADE.

Once before we referred to the rumours which point out that Whampoa is to be made a great depot for merchandise. It is now said that the high officials are moving in the matter, and that the undertaking has been handed over to Cheung Tai Ip who is instructed to consult with the local moneyed people in the district, as to ways and means. It is certain that this place would be a fine centre for trade distribution. The railway is to pass through it and connect it with Canton and other big towns. The writer refers to the palmy days of Hong Hé, that is, to the old factory days, and before, and he thinks that those days can be revived. It is quite likely that something will be attempted.

THE RISE IN MEAT.

(To the Editor of the CHINA MAIL.) HONGKONG, March 4, 1905.

Sir.—I read with interest the article in your valuable paper of the 3rd inst. about the rise in the price of meat. In the "Elijah" instances of epic power were to be found: in the contrast of the prophet with the heathen and the priests; in the final chorus of the first part descriptive of the rejoicing of the Israelites and at the termination of the drought; and in the scene on Mount Sinai. With his "Songs without words" he has also enriched the repertoire of pianoforte music with a form of composition which lends itself readily to the transfer of momentary impressions. He, with becoming modesty, never attempted a comparison with the classics, and must be credited with referring to Bach and Mendelssohn as the unpeachable representatives of sound compositions.

The third portion of the lecture was devoted to the drawbacks to Mendelssohn's music which some historians had quoted, in consequence of Mendelssohn's good fortune all through life, owing to his genius not having been subjected to those fiery trials which seem necessary to touch the depths of the human heart, such as Schumann, Schubert, and Beethoven had experienced.

HOUSERHOLDER.

(To the Editor of the CHINA MAIL.)

Sir.—I read with interest the article in your valuable paper of the 3rd inst. about the rise in the price of meat.

Being an old resident I remember the time that hawkers of meat and poultry were allowed to sell their goods—brought direct from the villages, after they had taken out a license at the Registrar General's office—with no interference on the part of the police. Now, only those in the market are allowed to sell.

This is the principal reason for the rise in the price of all victuals, for they are all under one Guild which has a monopoly.

The moment the Government allows competition the prices will go down. Let the people take their cattle and pigs to the slaughter house and be examined by the inspector, and let them sell their meat in the streets. I have seen men chasing and offering poultry for sale in the streets. This deters them and consumers pay the piper, being compelled to pay the penalty, and the market is in disorder.
